THE BENNINGTON CASUALTIES

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—Yesterday afternoon the starboard boiler of the U. S. cruiser Bennington, lying in port, was blown up causing great loss of life. Lieutenant N. P. Perry and 38 of the crew are dead, 55 are injured and 21 are missing. The Bennington arrived from Honolulu on Wednesday last and was ordered to Port Harford to tow the monitor Wyoming to Mare Island. Steam was up yesterday morning and the Bennington was to sail at 10:30 and at the time of the explosion was awaiting the arrival of Captain Young, who was ashore. At 10:10 o'clock a cloud of steam and water shot up from the vessel and in a moment she was enveloped in smoke. The catastrophe occurred in plain view of hundreds who were on the wharves and about the ship in boats. The shrieks and screams of the wounded were appalling. Many men were blown overboard. Tugs, launches and rowboats rushed to the rescue. The news spread over the city like wildfire and ambulances, carriages and vehicles of all kinds conveyed the wounded to hospitals and private houses. Commander Young hurried to the wrecked ship, took charge, ordered the magazines flooded and the vessel beached on the Coronado shore to prevent her sinking. The work of rescue proceeded in an orderly way. The Bennington has a great hole in the starboard section and the upper deck was carried away. The machinery is a tangled mass and with blood and general wreckage makes a gruesome sight. The bodies in the interior of the ship are mutilated beyond recognition. Lieutenant Perry was officer of the deck at the time of the explosion and was standing directly over the boilers. Lieutenant Yates, the executive officer, was in charge of the Bennington when the explosion occurred. The cause of the disaster is as yet, undetermined. There is much talk among the survivors of the crew about defective boilers. All the bodies on board the wreck have not been removed, as yet, and many are missing who are supposed to have been drowned.

The following is the tabulation of the results of the catastrophe:

Bennington's complement	201
Killed	39
Injured	55
Missing	21
Total casualties	115
Total survivors	86

JAP STEAMERS TO CALL HERE AGAIN

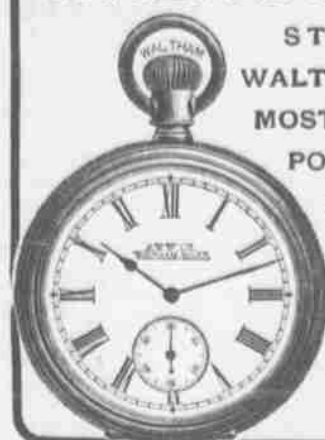

THE TOYO KISEN KAISHA LINERS TO RESUME THEIR TRIPS BETWEEN SAN FRANCISCO AND THE ORIENT. NOW THAT THE WAR IS OVER AND THERE IS NO LONGER DANGER TO THE COMMERCE OF JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—It is announced by the officials of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha Steamship Company that they expect to have their steamers on the run between this port and the Orient about the end of December. The Japanese line will resume business at first with three liners, and later three big vessels will be added to the fleet.

Word was received here several days ago that the contract for the construction of the new vessels was let in Japan. The new steamers are to be of monster size, with elegant passenger accommodations.

The Toyo Kisen Kaisha Steamship Company operated a line of vessels between this port and the Orient for several years. The vessels were the America Maru, Hongkong Maru and Nippon Maru. At the outbreak of the war the three liners were taken over by the Japanese Government and converted into auxiliary cruisers. With the destruction of Rojestvensky's fleet all fear of the Russian warships passed, and the officials of the Toyo Kisen say that they expect their steamers will be released by the Government within a few weeks. The liners will be immediately refitted for the passenger and freight traffic and put into service.

LACE TEACHER ASKS EXPLANATION

MRS. BRUNSON WANTS TO KNOW WHY SHE WAS REMOVED AND IS TOLD.

Mrs. Brunson, the expert lace teacher who was brought here two years ago to teach lace-making in the public schools, appeared before the Board of Education yesterday afternoon to inquire why she had been removed. She wanted to know what the charges against her were and said she had heard that it had been said that her work was unsatisfactory. Commissioner Farrington and A-1 both stated that the board should know what the charges were if any. Mrs. Wilcox for the committee having the matter in hand, said that the objection was that Mrs. Brunson had not given enough time to the work. It was also desired that Hawaiians take it up, and two Hawaiian girls had been appointed to succeed Mrs. Brunson. Mrs. Brunson's work was stated by all to be very excellent.
